

I think you people are nuts if you are seriously thinking of forcing New Jersey's law to be weakened! How many telemarketers actually like having telemarketers calling THEM!? I don't appreciate people trying to force telemarketing down my throat and I know I am not the only one. It's bad enough that we're being forced product advertisements at every waking moment, now the sanctuary of our homes are going to be forcefully invaded by a bunch of people that can't even get a decent job? I tell you what, give the people of new jersey the home phone number of at least one telemarketer, then maybe we'll reconsider. Let these people see how they like being annoyed without end, constantly, throughout the day. To ring your phone 15-20 times, only to hang up when you pick up, etc. Get real FCC....be helpful and don't force these people into homes of New Jersey Residents.
